-Miss Ora Allen, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Turner, on Walker's Avenue, this city, was united in marriage Wednesday at Lexington, to Mr. Herbert Lovell, of this city. The bride is a most excellent young lady, while the groom is the som of Mr. M. B. Lovell, of near town, and an industrious and popular young farmer.

KELLY-FEATHERSTON.

- The Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch gives a lengthy notice of the Kelly-Featherstone marriage which occurred January 14. The bride is a niece of Mrs.E. F. Clay of near Paris. We extract the following from the wedding report:

"A beautiful wedding took place at 11 o'clock yesterday in Broad street Mathodist Church, when Miss Virginia Lightning Insurance | Carroll Kelly, daughter of Rev. G. C. Kelly, D. D., became the bride of Mr. Howell Colston Featherston, son of the Hon. and Mrs. John C. Featherston, of Lynchburg. The bride's father, Rev. Gilby Kelly, pastor of the church performed the ceremony.

"The attendants were Miss Florence
Kelly, sister of the bride, who was her maid of honor; Miss Laura Bang, of Nashville, Tenn., and Miss Briggs, of his city, as maids. Miss Nannie Kelly, another sister of the bride, and Miss Jean Alexander were flower girls. The best man was Mr. John Haythe, of Lynchburg. Mr. Walter Fuleroy, of Lynnch's and the Hon. Carl Nolting, of Trevilian's, were groomsmen. The ushers were Mr. David Powers, of Caroline; Mr. R. C. Blackford, of Lynchburg; Mr. George B. White, of Richmond, and Hon. James Townsend, of Washington." Among those present at the marriage were Col. and Mrs. E. F. Clay, of Bourbon.

Two Centralizers.

As Mr. Roosevelts term draws to: close he sees Mr. Harriman, whom he classed with himself as a "practical man, "in partial or complete control of ten great railway systems, aggregating 77,000 miles or more than one-third of the total railway mileage of the United States. That Mr. Harriman's dissipated the terrors of the deep. grip on the railways of the country has been strengthened during the seven years of the Roosevelt Adminstration is a plain fact of history. He secured a ruling hand in the Erie only last spring. The Roosevelt panic enabled him the preceeding fall to capturet he Georgia Central. Now he is one of the powerful influences in the New York Central.

While Mr. Roosevelt aimed at the plan of centralizing in the executive by act of Congress the control of all of the railroads in the United States, Mr. Harrian has actually by his private operations succeeding in centralizing in himself the control of one third of them. Mr. Roosevelt has had his Railroad Rate bill placed in the statute books, and Mr. Harriman without the least interference has recently raised railway rates to suit himself on his transcontinental lines. The gle control; they protest against the re- beneficial. cent rise in rates on the Harriman ines; and they are. Nothing is done It has been a favorite doctrine of Mr Roosevelt's that his methods of centralization offered the only way to combat socialism. And Socialists find only cause for satisfation that the consolidation of railroad systems underMr. Harriman's mangement has been making rapid progress during the days of Roosevelt railroad reform. Where consolidation of an individual is accomplished they anticipate that state ownership will be made easier if not indeed imperative.

At present Mr. Harriman is pursuing his schemes undisturbed and no really responsible man has been sent to jail. on the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt prepares to quit office by asking Congress for larger powers and by demanding | will look surprised and say: "Oh, do that the Sherman Anti-Trust act be emasculated. As it is, the law not having been enforced, Mr. Harriman should feel devoutly grateful for the success of his plans.

Safeguards of the Sea.

The St. Louis arrives in port rudderless and limping, only a little after an accident which at a time recent in the history of sea travel would have crippled any ship.

Now, thanks to mechanical safeguards at sea, the blow which would have once have left the liner helpless occasions only an inconsiderable delay. The news flashed ashore to relieve anxiety and the ship proceeds over her accustomed route with only a reduction of headway, steering by her twin screws. What twenty years ago would have been the occassion ful larmist reports is now a passing incident of navigation, important mainly for the proof it adds to that already furnished withn a fortnight of the progress made in rendering ocean voyaging secure.

Time was, and not long ago, when an Atlantic liner mortally injured by collision as the Republic was would have floundered to quickly to permit of rescues. The vessel dealing the blow would in general probability have followed her to the bottom. Instead, the Florida, her nose smashed and her timbers strained, but still seaworthy, eaches port under her own steam.

In the increased size and stength of louble engines and twin propellers, her ongitudinal and tansverse bulkheads, in the protective device of the wireless telegraph, the system of submarine signal and the delicate [thermometric apparatus indicating the sproximity of icebergs, passengers have a guarantee of security at sea which has almost

A Growing Sentiment.

There is a rapidly growing sentiment all over the country in favor of beautifying school grounds. Where it has been done with any regard to taste and system the results have most satisfactory. There is everything to be said in its favor. There is no merit, quite the reverse, in having dilapidated bouildings, and ground covered with tail grass and weeds. The effect of such a condition upon the children or district is anything but good. That being so it naturally follows that when this condition is changed so that the grounds and buildings are pleasing to the eye by reason of their neat and attractive appearance a justifiable pride is arosed and with it many other good things. Some leadership and ambition, needed amount of labor and a small outlay of money are sufficient people of California protest that lines with good taste to turn almost any eye built for competition are under a sin- sore into that which is pleasing and Infamous Traffic.

Encouraging blows have recently been struck at "the inquitous white slave trade in Chicago and other cities. It is impossible to conceive of any infamy greater than that of corrupting the virtue of young girls and dragging them down to lasting ruin. Yet is a trade out of which infamous men and women have grown rich. The heavy fines and prison sentences imposed on some of the worst trafficers, in human souls is likely to have a deterrent in fluence upon others likeminded.

Can This Be True? If a woman admits to herself that she looks pretty well in a new gown she will not admit it to the other women If they compliment her dress, she you like it? It is just a common everyday dress."-Atchison Globe.

A Lazy Liver May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alco holic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorse and extolled by the most eminent medica writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Along comes an expert pickpocket-or pickfoot, I don't know which you want to call him. His keen eyes, fastened on the ground, discover those desirable clogs. Thereupon he makes up his mind that he wants them.

"The first thing she knows the owner of the clogs feels an unpleasant sensation in her left foot. parts of the trick," explained my friend. "The thief comes supplied with a pair of cheap wooden clogs costing but a few sen, and the owner of the lacquered footgear goes away with them and never notices the difference, at least not until it is too late to profit from the knowledge." "Are Japanese thieves so very clever, then?" I asked.

"Oh, very!" he returned. "Some time ago I heard of one of them who used to carry a handful of watch rings to fit into the stems of all sorts of watches that he might come by dishonestly. Once he lifted a watch in a train, and the owner, missing it, but not knowing who the thief was, set up a shout and had a policeman summoned. The police, to satisfy the victim, insisted that every one in the train show his watch. When the turn of the thief came he drew out of his pocket the stolen timepiece, and its original possessor, not recognizing it on account of the changed ring, missed an easy chance to regain his property. "It was the same fellow, I believe," he continued, "who managed by the expenditure of a little money to have himself enrolled under different names in the various lists of different towns. When arrested he gave one of these various names to the authorities. The police, on looking up the record of the name given, were unable to find any black marks against it. Thus he always managed to escape with a light punishment for his first offense, committed I don't know how many times. "But I don't know that any of these fellows were as clever as another thief I heard about. You know many of the Japanese sleep on a sort of bed made up on the floor, called a feuton. Well, an old Japanese miser kept his money in the house, concealed in a small chest of drawers. In the daytime he never took his eyes off his treasure, and at night he had his feuton pushed tightly against it, so no robber could | get at his money without awakening

"For a long time a gang of thieves had been puzzling their brains to find a way of stealing the hoard without being detected. Well, on a certain night one of them entered the house and gently, little by little, pulled the bed on which the miser lay away from the chest of drawers. Then he quickly emptied the drawers of their currency, shoved the bed back to its original position and made his escape.

DIKES IN GERMANY.

They Are Built With Great Care and Exactness.

When a dike is to be built-and they are still in places making dikes-it is first mapped out by the neatly sharpened stakes, a long straight causeway leading out from shore and widening into a rounded head which abuts on the red line of the channel. Then a ground sill or foundation mattress of willows is woven and sunk at this head and pinned down and held in place by the sharpened pegs. Then wattles are woven and sand filled in, and in places rock, and then, rounding up neatly out of the water and forming a tight covering to the whole, the hand squared blocks of stone are laid, as closely as a city pavement, all over the head and back along the neck to the old shore. It is as permanent and stable as the Harvard stadium, the dike so built, and the river, abandoning the space back of the tip to slack water or to be filled in with sand, flows on with entire grace in the restricted channel beyond the tip.

The care and exactness with which these dikes are made would be laughable if it were not so successful. In a land where hand labor is very cheap days are devoted to doing what in deacon, "but he 'peared ter have a sus- America would be roughly cast by mapicion dat dar wuz too much sunshine chinery in a couple of hours. ing a par- The Reptile Turns Over to Get Venom Into Its Victim.

It was his turning over habit that folk, who promptly unpicked the net led me to the discovery as to the bite to use for fishing lines, and cut up the of the Gila monster. This creature, balloon itself to make waterproof more like a short, stocky snake with legs on than anything else, has no poison fangs, like the rattlesnake, yet his bite may be just as dangerous. His poison teeth are in his lower jaw, and the poison comes from a gland under the tongue. If he bites without turning over the wound is not serious, but if he turns over there is great danger.

Dr. Snow of the University of Kansas wrote me some time ago of an experience he had with the bite of a Gila monster.

The reptile was caught and put in a bucket, the top of which was covered with paper. The bucket was then put in the wagon in which the doctor was rough, the bucket was bounced up and down, and in order to steady it Dr. Snow put his hand behind him and took hold of the bucket, thrusting his fingers through the newspaper cover on its top so that he could hold it secure. Suddenly he felt the monster's grip on his fingers. Startled and some what alarmed, he carefully pried the jaws of the reptile open and released himself. The wounds were such as any ordinary bite would have made, and he suffered no more inconvenience than might have been expected.

There are many stories current in Arizona and Sonora as to deaths that have occurred from Gila monsters' bites, but it is hard to get at the facts. Careful experiments made with animals show that when the reptile bites and turns over, so that the poison flows down the tooth grooves into the wound, the bitten creatures die in a short time.-Suburban Life.

A Dead Bird.

Samuel Butler, the witty but eccentric author of "Erewhon," which means "Nowhere," and of many other remarkable and suggestive books, is now more read than during his lifetime. He died in 1902. In one of his notebooks he tells this incident, which must have amused the great Charles Darwin:

"Frank Darwin told me his father was once standing near the hippopotamus cage when a little boy and girl, aged four and five, came up. The hippopotamus shut his eyes for a minute. "'That bird's dead,' said the little girl. 'Come along.' "

Her Lucky Number.

The byways as well as the highways of church life furnish much in the way of wit and humor. What, for instance, could be more mirth provoking than the naive confession of the cock of a London vicar who, being allowed to choose a hymn for the family prayers, was complimented on her choice by the vicar's wife?

"What a nice hymn you chose!" said the latter to the cook. "Yes, mum; it's the number of my

Ignorance of Physicians of the Eighteenth Century.

TORTURE FOR THE PATIENTS.

Ever; Ailment Beyond Diagnosis Was Classed as a Fever, and Pills, Plasters, Burning and Bleeding Were the Regulation Remedies.

The proverb "The remedy is worse than the disease" must have been coined in the eighteenth century, when physicians treated their patients with a violence that bordered on assault and battery. It was held that sickness was some kind of a demon that must be overcome by pills, plasters, bleeding and burning, and if the patient incidentally got the full effects of the torture and died, so much the worse for him. Air and water were considered the most dangerous things for a sick person to have, and his misguided demand for them was interpreted as a sign that he should have still less. The windows were shut and the curtains of the four poster tightly drawn around the recumbent unfortunate gasping for breath. If he burned with fever the blankets were piled on him. A desire for water meant that he could have none, while a lack of appetite proved that he ought to be stuffed with food. A bath was positively unthinkable.

The deadly results of breathing "night air" were accentuated by medical writers, says S. G. Tallentyre in the Cornhill Magazine. All air was bad, but the night quality often proved fatal to "young ladies of beauty, Attention, Ladies! fortune and great merit" and to "young gentlemen of parts and breeding." One bold medico recommended that a bed-Telephone 377 if You Need a daytime. Another dared to suggest that consumptives might benefit from sleeping in a pure atmosphere. The rule for ablutions was "hands often, feet seldom, head never," but a physician far in advance of his age surmised that invalids might bathe their feet in warm water once a week and under extraordinary circumstances take a warm bath once a month.

Overeating and drinking caused many of the diseases of the upper classes. Montesquieu said that dinner killed one half of the Parisians and supper the other half. Everywhere it was the custom to pile the table with roast beef, mutton, capons, boars' heads, pasties, creams, stuffings and mincemeats. A fearful repast of twelve indigestible courses was brought on all together, so that the diners knew what was expected of them. A large breakfast of small beer and meats preceded the gigantic midday meal, when people enjoyed a Gargantuan gorge for three hours and spent two more in Falstaffan potations. After this the gentle men joined the women for a dish of tea in the drawing room, and it was not long before the whole party of human anacondas returned to the dining room for a supper on the cold remnants of the dinner. Amid this orgy of gluttony Walpole and Voltaire were distinguished for an abstinence that prolonged their lives.

Heavy drinking was universal and rarely reprimanded by medical men, as by Dr. Tronchin. One Dr. Cheyne advised women not to take a whole bottle a day. Another authority wrote a popular treatise in which the best means of atttaining longevity was stated to be a bottle of wine at dinner and three glasses after. Those who followed such advice were in danger of being dubbed temperance cranks. A story is told of the celebrated and convivial Dr. Garth, who was tipping bumpers at the Kit-Kat club when reminded that his patients needed attention. "'Tis no matter," said Garth, already half seas over, "if I see them or not. Nine have such bad constitutions that all the doctors in the world can't save them, and the other six have such good that all the doctors in the world can't kill them." A physician named Brown became the pet of fashionable women by always prescribing pleasant remedies, "a glass of wine in the forenoon from time to time," "several glasses of port or punch after dinner till some enlivening effect is perceived from them." Together with inordinate quantities of liquor and food, Dr. Brown recommended to his male patients the company of "delightful young women." One of the natural consequences of such an agreeable regimen was the gout, for which eighteenth century high livers took seas of liquid medicines, mountains of pills and bins of powders.

Any disease beyond diagnosis was put down as "a fever." Whether typhus or typhoid, scarlet or gastric, noncontagious or violently infectious, any thing which caused a rise in temperature was sufficiently described by the erm fever. Smallpox, scurvy, spotted and jail fever were maladies distinctive of the age. Disinfection and first aid to natures were never dreamed of, I have adopted a strictly CASH while the patient was dosed with horrible drafts and nauseating compounds. and bled on every possible occasion. Louis XIV. was bled nine times for scarlet fever. Bleeding killed the Duchess of Tremouille and her husband. When a mob attacked the Duke of Bedford's house in 1765 the doctors remedied the outrage by bleeding the duchess next morning. A young man who fell against a marble table and cut his head open was treated by having a few pints of extra blood drawn from his veins by an expert surgeon. Blistering was esteemed next to bleeding. A fashionable remedy for consumption was a mash of raw snails, shells and all, taken from a spoon.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being constitutional disease, requires a constitutonal treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the systems, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up tne constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative power that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J.
